(nurse manager) who remained supporters of Queen's journey even when it extended outside the scope of their facility. Queen lived up to the true definition of her name "a girl who rules and is highly respected' She came to do one job and she did just that she touched the lives of so many. We all spend time looking for our purpose and she knew hers out the gate her experience educated, inspired and brought together not only family and friends but others within the community. "Grandma Connie states"-Even though she was the apple of her mother's eye

Her

mother was the apple of her eye Queen had this unconditional love for her mother that could not be matched she wanted to leave first so she wouldn't have to experience living without her.

Queen and her daddy's bond were just right, she was always wrapped around his fingers real tight especially when he called her to play fight. Queen never put up a fuss, but she always blushed even though she left her body on that day we all knew it was better that way
